

A couple of months back it was rumoured that Lindsay Lohan was in the running to portray Lois Lane in the Superman reboot. Clearly, that didn't happen - but now Film Radar are reporting that the actress wishes to be in the movie in some other capacity: Amy Adams might have edged out Lindsay Lohan to nab the coveted role as Lois Lane in the Superman reboot, but the troubled actress' hopes haven't been completely dashed. RadarOnline.com has learned Lohan, 24, will read for a role in the movie in front of producers sometime in the near future. "Lindsay is planning to return from New York on Wednesday at which time she will meet with producers and read for them," a source close to the actress told RadarOnline.com. The film's powerbrokers remain interested in casting her in a role as a villain... Lohan had wanted the role of Superman's love-interest Lois Lane, but is said
