

Image Courtesy of lucescamarayblog Dark Shadows opens up in May and we still haven't seen a trailer for this movie, that is almost unheard of. There could be a lot at play, but one of them is something that actress Helena Bonham Carter alluded to a few months ago, this film is a challenge to market. If the description below is true than that would mean the film will be sold as a comedy, but I've also read reports that the film will have plenty of scares in it as well, but it appears that tone and imagery won't be marketed. Audie Rules states that the trailer will use The Doors' song "People are Strange." Normally I don't like to post things from IMDB, which is notorious for fictional descriptions, but this one actually seems legit. And with the films opening just a few months away, I would say it's a pretty good
