

So a scooper over at Latino Review reckons Shane Black's Iron Man 3 might just be based, at least in part, on the incredibly popular "Extremis" story-line from the comics. They say they can't go into too much detail but what follows is what they do tell us.. Nanobots, people! - Nanobots that make villains - Nanobots that can also make Tony Stark more than a man in a suit. - Which is an idea planted in Tony Stark's head by Captain America in THE AVENGERS because Avengers leads directly into Iron Man 3. - Production on Iron Man 3 starts in May. Now although "nanobots" are not necessarily specific to the Extremis story-line, I'm pretty sure that is what these guys are referencing. In that arc by Warren Ellis, Tony Stark is basically upgraded into a type of "android" himself - separate to the technology powering his suit. It's a lot more complex than that but

Read more: <http://www.comicbookmovie.com/fansites/rorschachsrants/news/?a=56196>