

Latino Review has been around for a while and they've been knocking it out of the park recently with their Iron Man 3 scoops so I tend to believe them when they post interesting stories like this. According to the site, Sony and Marvel Studios were apparently very close to letting an element of the Spider-Man universe appear in Joss Whedon's mega [insert superlative adjective] film. Here's what was reported---- Imagine my surprise when I heard a rumor that the Oscorp Tower from Amazing Spider-Man was "this close" to becoming part of the sky line for Avengers. (Hint: pretty surprised) Here's the story – last week, The Amazing Spider-Man's production designer J Michael Riva (he passed away recently after suffering a stroke at the age of 63). Not only did he design the Oscorp Tower for ASM, but he has a staggering resume of awesomeness including The Goonies, The Color Purple,
