

By now, we have all seen and heard just about everything the actors involved with Green Lantern could possibly have to say about shooting the film. All of us are also well aware of the negative reviews that seem to be dashing many longtime Lantern fans hopes of seeing a decent adaptation on the big screen tomorrow night. Well, while reading through Latino Reviews report of the Green Lantern press junket held last week in LA, I came across this somewhat refreshing exchange that shows Reynolds and Lively defending New Orleans to the reporter asking the questions. Ryan and Blake, you guys were in Louisiana, which were pretty desolate where you were filming. So could you tell me what you guys did in your spare time? I know Blake, you did a lot of baking. And for Mark and Peter, you guys are very unrecognizable. Could you explain talk about the heavy

Read more: http://www.comicbookmovie.com/fansites/GulfCoastAvengers/news/?a=39571&t=Ryan_Reynolds_and_Blake_Lively_Defend_New_Orleans_During_iGreen_Lanterni_Press_Junket