

The RZA, the GZA, Ol Dirty Bastard, Inspectah Deck, Raekwon the Chef.....wait, what were we talking about here.....that's right. The RZA, who learned filmmaking under the tutelage of none other than Quentin Tarantino and who's set to make his directing debut next month with The Man with the Iron Fist is set to tackle Grant Morrison's Happy next. The comic debuted last month featuring art from Darick Robertson. Morrison himself will write the script. Reginald Hudlin will serve as the film's producer. In the meantime, check out the trailer for The Man with the Iron Fist for a glimpse of RZA's directing sensibilities. RELATED CONTENT: Grant Morrison To Write Rogue Trooper Movie Grant Morrison Discusses His New Book Supergods; Thought-Provoking Stuff Looking Back #2: The 2006 Skrull Kill Krew Television Series That Never Was Meet NICK SAX - a corrupt, intoxicated ex-cop turned hit-man, adrift in a stinking twilight world of casual murder, soulless sex,

Read more: <http://www.comicbookmovie.com/fansites/GraphicCity/news/?a=68421>