

Speaking to Australian outlet, The Age, actor Samuel L. Jackson, the highest grossing actor of all-time looks back on working with director Joss Whedon and the rest of The Avengers cast. On working with Joss Whedon- Samuel L. Jackson: Joss Whedon is very good at what he does. He's incredibly smart, and he's a great director and writer. The script was constantly evolving. We would get eight or nine pages, and two days later he would say, "I was thinking about that... Now it should be this." Once you look at it all on screen, it all comes together – and it's very nice. Why he thinks the movie performed so well at the box-office- SLJ: Joss knows more about the comic book genre than most people, especially within this particular franchise. He has an understanding of the relationships of the characters and he understands the Marvel world. He put the story and the

Read more: <http://www.comicbookmovie.com/fansites/GraphicCity/news/?a=66850>