

Speculation has been running wild as to what the "Leviathan" actually is that is referred to in the Avengers callsheet. I came across this information earlier today before we had the shooting schedule and was reluctant to post because my source was also skeptical as this "sea-monster" news came totally out of left field [This was before we got the shooting schedule] . But with the release of The Avengers shooting schedule/callSheet it looks like the information was indeed true. Early today, I was able to gather some Avengers set photos from @JimboMont who also did some investigating and asked some questions to the local crew working on the film. I've had some discussion with him and in addition to the photo's he posted for me [which you can see here], he was able to gather some very unexpected information. Here's what he was told.

Read more: http://www.comicbookmovie.com/fansites/GraphicCity/news/?a=45792&t=SCOOP_Leviathan_In_Avengers_Will_Indeed_Be_A_Sea-Monster