

The folks from I Am Rogue recently caught up with Twilight screenwriter Melissa Rosenberg, who Marvel-Disney tapped to pen the story for a television series based on the titular character of Brian Bendis' Alias comic; Jessica Jones. Discussing the source material of the ABC series, being titled AKA Jessica Jones, and the inclusion of 'Luke Cage,' read what she says below. On the Brian Michael Bendis-written Alias source material: "Brian Michael Bendis is such an amazing storyteller. I read that comic book & I completely saw it on screen. There're things I took directly from the comic book & just put in the script. That was so much fun to do." On the current status on the Television series: "It's still sitting at ABC and we're hoping to get on the schedule for next fall," she said. "I love this character. That is an incredibly damaged, dark, complex female character that kicks ass. That's my

Read more: http://www.comicbookmovie.com/fansites/MarvelFreshman/news/?a=49632&:t=Screenwriter_Melissa_Rosenberg_Briefly_Dishes_On_iAKA_Jessica_Jones_TV_Series