

Read more: http://www.comicbookmovie.com/fansites/GulfCoastAvengers/news/?a=27874&t=Seth_Rogen_Disappointed_With_Uninformed_Online_Criticism_of_iThe_Green_Hornet_i

Seth Rogen talked with MTV recently about his upcoming film The Green Hornet. In what is an interesting conversation, he told MTV how he was aware of the fact that the online community would be against this movie until they had the chance to actually see it in theaters. He also told them that knowing this didn't always help during the long process of bringing the film together. Now, with most reviews for the film being beyond positive, Rogen says people will finally have the opportunity to make an informed decision instead of assuming they know what the film is like. "It's something that Evan would constantly have to remind me of throughout the process, in that this is kind of exactly what we thought would happen. From the second we thought of doing a movie like this, I remember talking about it like, 'Everyone's going to think it's going to be insane