

In the brief interview with Shawn Levy below the director updates on two potential projects that he is attached to: Fantastic Voyage and Frankenstein. He says he wants to make both and has met with actors but can't say with any certainty if either will definitely happen. In response to this Steve Weintraub suggests that this leaves a window open to possibly direct something else, and that "there's a lot of comic book movies DC are trying to make". Levy's response? "You know where to find me" Interesting that Weintraub brings up DC specifically. Both projects on Levy's radar are with Fox, might he have taken some meetings with Warner Bros? Do you guys think Levy would be a good fit for one of their upcoming projects? By all accounts Real Steal has surprised many people by actually being pretty darn good. By TwitterButtons.com

Read more: http://www.comicbookmovie.com/fansites/rorschachsrants/news/?a=47005&t=Shawn_Levy_Updates_On_iFrankenstein_iFantastic_Voyagei_Could_We_See_Him_Direct_A_CBM