

Variety's Justin Kroll is reporting that Shiloh Fernandez will star in FilmDistrict and Mandate's "Evil Dead" reboot. The role was sought after by many young actors, but Shiloh came out on top in the end. The film will be directed by Fede Alvarez who wrote the first screenplay. While Juno's Diablo Cody was also brought on board in order to fine tune the script. Based on the information it seems safe to assume that the role is, David, the brother to the female lead, Mia. A role that Lily Collins just recently passed on and according to Variety has not been filled. Mia will be the Ash-like character in the movie. Although in this remake Mia will be suffering from a drug problem and her brother and his/her friends will bring her to a secluded cabin for an intervention. At the cabin another male friend will come across the "Book of
