

I feel the excitement of anticipation and a touch of sadness over the fact that after 10 years it's all coming to an end. Simultaneously, I'm actually okay with it – a fact that should NOT be perceived as my looking negatively upon the show. Instead, it just feels like the natural order of things; a reality that I and generations of Superman fans have been confronted with, dealt with and moved beyond time after time over the years. I remember 10 years ago, in the summer of 2001 and the months before everything changed for America, when I first heard about Smallville. At the time I'd known director David Nutter for a number of years and heard that he was directing the pilot for this new WB series. After interviewing him about it, I asked if he could put me in touch with the show's creators and almost immediately I

Read more: http://www.comicbookmovie.com/fansites/VoicesFromKrypton/news/?a=37246&t=SMALLVILLE_Ed_Gross_Pre-Finale_Thoughts_on_the_Show