

Admittedly this is not a well-crafted review, but, instead, are my quick impressions about the episode shortly after it finished airing. The stuff between Lois & Clark and their relationship - awesome and part of the show I'm really going to miss. They should definitely do a new version of Lois & Clark with these two in the leads. Emotional sequences between Clark and Martha, and Clark and Jonathan -- great. Emotionally, the episodes hit on a number of levels. Oliver as Green Arrow (cool); Oliver as Green Arrow managing to take down Darkseid's minions with a trio of arrows... not so much. If he could have done that all along, why didn't he? 10 seconds of a physical Darkseid - rip-off. An entire season builds up to this and instead of Darkseid (beyond a few seconds) we get a Lionel-possessed by Darkseid who looks fairly ridiculous. Return of Lex: Very cool to

Read more: http://www.comicbookmovie.com/fansites/VoicesFromKrypton/news/?a=37285&t=Smallville_Finale_Quick_Review_by_Ed_Gross