

The Amazing Spider-Man is off to a very good start, netting $35m on its opening day in the States, giving it the biggest Tuesday opening of all time. Many experts also believe the movie could reach the $150m mark by the end of the weekend. Sony had already given a sequel the green light before this movie was even close to being released, so it shouldn't come as much of a surprise that they've given a third installment the go ahead now that big bucks are being made. The following was announced on the official TASM Facebook page.. It's finally here! The Amazing Spider-Man is the first installment in a movie trilogy that will explore how our fave hero's journey was shaped by the disappearance of his parents. Director Mark Webb has not signed on to helm the sequel yet, but has revealed that he has some ideas on the direction the story

Read more: <http://www.comicbookmovie.com/fansites/roshachsrants/news/?a=62973>