

The embargo has lifted incredibly early on set visit reports for the movie. Very unusual for a film that isn't hitting theaters til September. But you can read some spoilery details courtesy of Movie Web. The first scene we watched featured Ada Wong being lead out of a Russian submarine in handcuffs onto the ice by... Rain Ocampo, who is also seen injecting something into her neck: the Las Plagas virus. The call sheet we were given lists a "Bad Rain," so already, we were intrigued, but still confused. Oded Fehr cleared things up... kind of... by explaining that both he and Michelle Rodriguez play two different characters within the same body. "I kind of come back twice on this one. I think you had a hundred Milla's on the last one. So obviously, you can have more Carloses and more Rains. The interesting thing is, I come back as two different guys
