

In today's issue of Suicide Squad, Amanda Waller was shot point blank in the chest, and the cover for issue #12 appears to confirm that the Task Force X boss is indeed dead! There's obviously a good chance this is misdirection, but it looks pretty definite based on this cover art alone. As a result, it now appears as if we can expect the team to have to investigate her demise, but will they really want to? They probably don't have much in the way of motivation considering the fact that Waller treats the team so poorly, but this should still be a lot of fun to see play out. For more, here's the solicitation text: "BURNING DOWN THE HOUSE" part two! Determined to unmake all the world's institutions of governance and control, [REDACTED] orchestrates a series of prison breakouts across the DC Universe, forcing Harley Quinn, Deadshot and the rest of the Suicide Squad into their most dangerous mission yet: keeping their

Read more: https://www.comicbookmovie.com/comics/dc_comics/spoilers-suicide-squad-12-cover-seemingly-reveals-a-major-a148793