

As shown in several set photos from the final days of filming, last weekend in New York, Stan Lee filmed his much-expected cameo for Marvel Studios' The Avengers. And that same day, "the man" attended the annual Dragon*Con, where he ultimately praised director Joss Whedon and vaguely discussed the cameo. Oh, He's wonderful, I was watching him direct. He knows just what to do, he knows just how to do it. He doesn't get flustered. Hes good with the actors, hes good with the technicians; hes just a good guy. I was very impressed with him; I've always been, but seeing him in action that way. It's one of the reasons that the movie is gonna do so well. There was only one thing - when I was doing my cameo for The Avengers, after the third take, he asked could I take off my glasses because somehow the flash of the

Read more: http://www.comicbookmovie.com/fansites/MarvelFreshman/news/?a=46140&t=Stan_Lee_Praises_Director_Joss_Whedon_And_Dishes_On_Cameo_In_iThe_Avengersi