

Here's an excerpt from a fun interview Stan Lee did with TvKids.ws. It definitely reminds me of why Stan will forever have a special place in the annals of comic book lore. TV KIDS: And you're also a playable character in a new video game [Amazing Spider-Man]? LEE: Oh, yes! I forgot about that. I'm a playable character in Activision's new Spider-Man video game. I haven't seen it yet but I can't wait to play me. [Laughs] We've also just launched [a website], TheRealStanLee.com. And that's obviously in opposition to the phony Stan Lee—we don't want anybody to get that. TV KIDS: Looking at some of the characters you've created, did you ever think that they were going to have the kind of longevity that they've had, and that they would be reinvented in feature films and video games and other platforms? LEE: I'd love to say I knew all the time

Read more: <http://www.comicbookmovie.com/fansites/GraphicCity/news/?a=56348>