

Talking to Entertainment Weekly, Stan Lee brought up his cameo in The Avengers and judging from his reaction in the below video interview, it sounds as if it will be something very special indeed! All we know so far of course is what we spotted in those set photos during the filming of the movie in New York (Chris Evans was the only Avenger present and in his civilian duds). Stan also does a pretty fierce impression of the Hulk while discussing the upcoming release of the downloadable Marvel storybooks for children, although there's currently no embed code available, so click on the image below to watch the video. gambling insider
