

Stan Lee is gearing up for The London Super Comic Con and while talking with TNT Magazine He talked a little bit about The Amazing Spider-Man. He was asked what he thought of British actors playing the American characters that he created in Spider-Man and The Lizard saying, "I love British actors. I wish I were British. When British people talk it sounds more impressive than when Americans talk." He also addressed the concern of Andrew Garfield taking over for Toby Maguire as Spider-Man, "Everybody was worried about Garfield. How could he replace Maguire? But he brings a whole new feeling to it, the way Parker ought to be but with a different take on it. From what I have seen, the public will love it," assured Lee. One of the most anticipated story lines this year will be how The Avengers and The Amazing Spider-Man stack up against Christopher Nolan's

Read more: http://www.comicbookmovie.com/fansites/JakeLester/news/?a=54197&t=Stan Lee Talks THE AMAZING SPIDER-MAN And Competition With THE DARK KNIGHT RISES