

Even if you're not familiar with Olly Moss' name, you'll no doubt have seen his amazing minimalist posters for Star Wars (and probably died a little inside upon seeing how much they're going for on eBay). Now, the artist has designed seven very cool posters for the Harry Potter series, and while they use the same background, he's found an inventive way of making them all appear pretty unique. They're currently available on his website until October 25th for $50 each or $275 for the set. That's not cheap, but you have to admit that these would look pretty good on your wall! The upcoming release of Fantastic Beasts and Where to Find Them has got people talking about Harry Potter again, but will we see him back on the big screen? Rumours point to The Cursed Child being adapted for film! Whether or not that's going to happen remains to be seen, but check out all of the posters below.

Read more: <https://www.comicbookmovie.com/fantasy/star-wars-artist-olly-moss-reveals-seven-incredible-posters-for-jk-a146119>