

Conducted with Moviezine and translated by the good folks over at Slash Film, Swedish actor Stellan Skarsgård recently discussed his reprisal as 'Erik Selvig' in Thor: The Dark World. Also answering whether he's been asked about reprising the role in Marvel's The Avengers sequel, Skarsgård also praises director Joss Whedon. Thor 2 I have already begun. We have done some filming in London, and will run on in November. As for "The Avengers 2" I have not heard anything about me to be with or not. I'm under contract, so if they want me, I have no choice. The role of "Thor 2" is about as big as the last. New director, yes. Alan Taylor who has done some "Game of Thrones." [Joss Whedon] is an extremely intelligent nerd. He is an expert on all this stuff, then writes he is terribly good. That he managed to write that "Avengers" script,

Read more: <http://www.comicbookmovie.com/fansites/MarvelFreshman/news/?a=67130>