

Collider has posted an interview with director Steven Spielberg where he touched on numerous topics. Most interesting of the topics was that he confirmed that the sequel To The Adventure of Tintin The Secret of The Unicorn will be two of Herge's stories instead of one. He also reiterated what Peter Jackson said by saying that Jackson will start working on it this year after he finished the hobbit. "I'm not going to say which stories have been chosen for Peter Jackson's sequel because Peter and I agreed that we weren't going to let that information out yet. The script is now being written. It's more than one book, but it's not three books, so that means it's two books. It's two and a half books that we're combining with The Secret of the Unicorn. And Peter will start working on the film this year. When he's done shooting The Hobbit, he'll

Read more: http://www.comicbookmovie.com/fansites/JakeLester/news/?a=52739&t=Steven_Spielberg_Confirms_TINTIN_Sequel_Will_Be_Two_Books_Says_He_Wont_Direct_JURASSIC_PARK_4