

Green Lantern has finally hit theater screens across most of the world and with it's general reaction from fans and critics alike being mediocre to say the least. Artist Jerad Marantz has posted via his blog some very amazing concept art that he drew up for the big screen adaption of the DC comics hero. Some of which looks absolutely stunning and would've looked even better had it made it's way into the finished product. Pretty cool stuff. Too bad they went the Galactus-cloud route for Parallax.

Read more: http://www.comicbookmovie.com/fansites/GraphicCity/news/?a=40014&t=Stunning_Unused_Green_Lantern_Concept_Art_Surfaces