

A couple of deleted scenes from the extended cut of Suicide Squad have already been released, but we now have a new batch of images that tease the rest of the moments that were removed from the theatrical version of the supervillain team-up flick. As we expected, most of the new stuff involves The Joker (Jared Leto) and/or Harley Quinn (Margot Robbie), and we get a much closer look at the scene involving the latter pointing a gun to the Clown Prince of Crime's head that first came to our attention in those leaked set snaps. The deranged duo aren't the only ones that get some extra attention, however, as pretty much every member of the team has a little more to do in the extended edition... except Slipknot, obviously. Oh, and there's also this little nightmare fuel shot from the gag reel. For a full breakdown of what's going on in each scene head on over to Screenrant. Task Force X: One Team,
