

Yesterday Latino Review broke the story that Marvel's 2014 mystery movie is Guardians of the Galaxy and now they have even more exciting news. Legendary Pictures who has been extremely quiet on the Godzilla front will finally unleash their vision of the creature for all to see at Comic-Con this year in the enormous Hall H. Not only is Legendary bringing the Lizard to comic con but get this, I hear the presentation is SICK! I'm not going to get into specific spoiler territory because then what's the point of attending the panel, but take this one to the bank. Godzilla will stomp both the audio and video systems within Hall H two weeks from this Saturday! I'll be there to witness it myself. I can already envision them shutting down the lights, hearing Godzilla's roar, and the crowd going wild! - Latino Review The film will be directed by Gareth Edwards (Monsters)
