

Thor: Ragnarok is shaping up to be perhaps 2017's most exciting superhero movie. After all, we know that it will feature Thor and Loki attempting to track down Odin, the big screen debut of Hela, and a cosmic road trip of sorts as the God of Thunder and The Hulk wind up in The Grandmaster's gladiatorial arena. Now, Chris Hemsworth has shared a first look at the costume he'll wear in the upcoming movie. Rumour has it that Thor will be without Mjolnir (and his golden locks) when he's forced to fight in the Planet Hulk style arena, so this is probably his main costume rather than the one he'll be sporting there. While it appears as if he'll have the cloak, the armour on his arms has gone, though that hasn't been seen since Thor: The Dark World anyway. Regardless, this is definitely a pretty cool look for Thor. What do you guys think of his Thor: Ragnarok costume? As always, let

Read more: https://www.comicbookmovie.com/thor/thor_ragnarok/take-a-closer-look-at-the-god-of-thunders-new-costume-in-thor-a146364