

Talking to Digital Spy, Immortals director Tarsem Singh has revealed that he's not a fan of how Mirror Mirror has been so far been promoted by the studio. When it was first released, the trailer was met with a fair amount of ridicule; Singh however doesn't believe that this reflects the quality of his take on Snow White. "I'm really angry at the trailers. I'm a director, I guess, so I always get pissed at them! The movie looks fantastic and the trailers look so hammily off." "The posters are okay," he added. "[T]hey're still neutral, but we're trying to get the film out there so people don't judge it by the trailer." As for how much involvement he had in the creation of the trailers, the director revealed: "I backed away from it a bit. I fought that fight on Immortals and I found that I was taking my eye off

Read more: <http://www.comicbookmovie.com/fansites/JoshWildingNewsAndReviews/news/?a=55716>