

During a press junket for The Dark Knight Rises, Christopher Nolan once again praised Anne Hathaway and her performance as Catwoman. "Anne is incredibly precise and articulate about the psychology of the character. She's really built it from the ground up, it's just a delight to watch her perform, the things she does in those heels is not to be taken lightly." Continuing on, Nolan admitted that he feels Hathaway should continue her take as Catwoman. "For me, Gotham and these characters, I'm done. I've told our story and I'm moving on." When confronted about Hathaway seeing her own Catwoman spin-off, Nolan stated: "I certainly think she deserves it, she's incredible." The Dark Knight Rises is directed by Christopher Nolan(The Prestige, Inception) and stars Christian Bale, Michael Caine, Morgan Freeman, Tom Hardy, and Anne Hathaway. The film will be unleashed upon audiences on the 20th of this month.

Read more: <http://www.comicbookmovie.com/fansites/Castle/news/?a=63454>