

Digital Spy reports that The Dark Knight Rises' UK debut of £14.6 million is the second highest opening of 2012, but obviously is not quite high enough to topple Marvel's The Avengers (better known as Avengers Assemble on that side of the pond). Joss Whedon's superhero ensemble (which was helped by £2.55 million in preview showings) had an opening weekend of £15.78 million back in April. However, Christopher Nolan's third and final Batman movie had no problems beating Sony Pictures's Marc Webb helmed reboot, The Amazing Spider-Man after that opened earlier this month with a still impressive £11 million. This opening for The Dark Knight Rises is £4.43 million ahead of both Batman Begins in 2005 and The Dark Knight in 2008. Below is the current UK box office top ten in full. Be sure to read my 5* review of The Dark Knight Rises by clicking HERE. 1. (-) The Dark

Read more: <http://www.comicbookmovie.com/fansites/JoshWildingNewsAndReviews/news/?a=64502>