

When Hardy mentioned TDKR and Starbucks in the same sentence some people immediately pounced, but I think most reasonable minded folk understood what he was trying to say. Granted he might have chosen his words more carefully. Anyway the self described "sensitive" actor has explained his comments to Variety, while also revealing that he reads comics. And cries. I'm not sure if he means in that order.. "I'm really sorry if anyone misunderstood what I said about comparing working for a huge franchise to being like working for Starbucks. I didn't mean it like that. I mean, it could have been British Airways. It could have been Virgin, it could have been any huge company" "I'm human and I do read things and I get hurt. My friends say "Don't read anything , just ignore it". But I do. And I read Comics. And I cry" Filming continues on Christopher Nolan's third and

Read more: http://www.comicbookmovie.com/fansites/rorschachsrants/news/?a=45147&t=iTDKRis_Tom_Hardy_Explains_His_Starbucks_Comment