

Although a bit underwhelming now that the theatrical trailer has been released, and setting a record for most watched trailer on iTunes, the teaser that gave us the first low-quality perception of Marvel's The Avengers has hit the net in high-quality. Detached from Captain America: The First Avenger's after-credits, offering a few clips that were not included in the theatrical trailer, check out the video below courtesy of Twitter's Antovolk; and the studios' press release. Screengrabs courtesy of TheIrishAvenger And regarding the theatrical trailer's broken record, Marvel has issued the following press release: BURBANK, Calif.--(EON: Enhanced Online News)--Marvel Studios announced today that the trailer for next summer's most highly anticipated movie, "Marvel's The Avengers," has been downloaded over 10 million times in its first 24 hours on iTunes Movie Trailers (<http://www.apple.com/trailers>), shattering the most-viewed trailer record in the site's history. The trailer, which debuted Tuesday, October 11, exclusively on iTunes Movie Trailers, gives fans a

Read more: http://www.comicbookmovie.com/fansites/MarvelFreshman/news/?a=48164&:t=iThe_Avengersi_Break_iTunes_Record_Watch_Teaser_In_HQ_From_iCaptain_America_TFAi