

Only two weeks remain until we hit the month of April; the month where non-disclosure agreements, revealing set visit reports and critics review embargoes, among other things, are lifted in anticipation for Marvel's The Avengers movie. And although we've had a great deal of promotion these past few days, I've assembled yet another roundup of small print news. With the roundup mostly filled with licensed apparel, first up, the SM Youth of the SM Department Store has unveiled their full lineup of licensed T-shirts for The Avengers movie.

While most of the Halloween costume for The Avengers were previously revealed, the costumes based on the film's Incredible Hulk were concealed. Well, now Disguise has posted adult-sized costumes, one of which glows.

Read more: <http://www.comicbookmovie.com/fansites/MarvelFreshman/news/?a=56515>