

When it was announced that Jeremy Renner would be starring in The Bourne Legacy, the news was met with a very mixed reaction from fans. Many were pleased to see The Hurt Locker and THOR actor being given a starring role in what could potentially be the beginning of his own franchise, while the rest were livid that Matt Damon (Jason Bourne himself) had seemingly been replaced. Well, it seems like the actor had his own reservations about taking on the role. "This offer wasn't about a movie, this was about a life choice. In Mission, it's a Tom Cruise movie. The Avengers is ensemble-y, but [Bourne] is a game changer," he said. "I thought, 'This is going to affect how I walk down the street. It's going to affect what happens when I go into a restaurant.' I can't even believe I'm saying this, but is this going to affect the

Read more: http://www.comicbookmovie.com/fansites/joshw24/news/?a=49814&t=iThe Avengersi Star Jeremy Renner Reveals His Fear That iBournei Role Will Ruin His Career