

The third season of The Walking Dead will air on October 14th later this year on AMC and will include such fan favourite characters as 'Michonne' and 'The Governor' as well as locations like 'The Prison' and 'Woodbury'. Fans are hoping it will be more exciting than the second season which, while still a damn good TV show, was more than a little slow in places as the survivors found themselves on Hershel's farm. In a feature over at Entertainment Weekly, the cast of the show have all shared their thoughts on such criticisms. Be sure to click on the link below to read comments from Sarah Wayne Callies (Lori Grimes) and Executive Producer Gale Anne Hurd. Robert Kirkman - Writer/Executive Producer I know that we're all very proud of season 2, and we're very happy with how it turned out. I think that once you see it all as a whole,

Read more: <http://www.comicbookmovie.com/fansites/JoshWildingNewsAndReviews/news/?a=66899>