

The addition of Kara's slightly more famous cousin has been the biggest talking point of the second season of Supergirl, but the Girl of Steel is reclaiming some of the spotlight with this new red white 'n blue banner. The CW's acquisition of Supergirl has been a massive deal for DC fans, who now get to see a whole host of characters interact in a shared TV universe, and they'll be hoping to see some more groundwork laid for that big four-show crossover tomorrow night. In Season One, Supergirl soared fighting crime and battling various villains, chief among them two Kryptonians who were intent on destroying earth, but she has yet to find that same empowerment as Kara Danvers. Now, in Season Two, Kara has left the safety of being Cat Grant's assistant in order to figure out what she really wants to do, while as Supergirl she continues to work at the DEO., protecting the citizens of National City and searching for

Read more: <https://www.comicbookmovie.com/supergirl/the-cw-releases-a-patriotic-new-supergirl-season-2-banner-ahead-of-a145833>