

Once every decade, The British Film Institute's Sight and Sound magazine polls a selected panel of 846 distributors, critics, and academics to come up with their greatest film of all time. Orson Wells' Citizen Kane has come out on top for the last 50 years, but this time Alfred Hitchcock's Vertigo got the top spot. By way of a fun response to this list, HeyUguys decided to put together an alternative top 10. 120 contributors from various sites and blogs across the net have sent in their lists, and here are OUR 10 best of all time.. 1) Jaws 2) Back to the Future 3) The Dark Knight 4) Blade Runner 5) 2001 A Space Odyssey 6) There Will Be Blood 7) Psycho 8) Citizen Kane 9) Pulp Fiction 10) The Thing As you can see, Christopher Nolan's The Dark Knight came third, which is pretty impressive. It's great to see sci-fi fare such as Blade Runner, The Thing and Back To

Read more: <http://www.comicbookmovie.com/fansites/rorschachsrrants/news/?a=65264>