

Director Christopher Nolan has wowed Batman fans with his artistic approach to filming major studio films. His ability to wipe away all the harm that was done upon the character by Joel Schumacher's atrocious Batman and Robin, was truly remarkable. No longer would a Batman film be a two hour long toy commercial. With all journeys they must come to an end and Christopher Nolan discusses the importance of bringing his trilogy to a rightful conclusion. "Without getting into specifics, the key thing that makes the third film a great possibility for us is that we want to finish our story. And in viewing it as the finishing of a story rather than infinitely blowing up the balloon and expanding the story ... unlike the comics, these things don't go on forever in film and viewing it as a story with an end is useful." Many of us fans will feel excitement the

Read more: <http://www.comicbookmovie.com/fansites/nailbiter111/news/?a=58737>