

An emailed memo outlining details about the filming said scenes for "Magnus Rex," the film's code name, will be shot at 1100 Raymond Boulevard, a building that houses a Social Security satellite office and other federal agencies. The massive, gray structure is across the street from the Seton Hall Law School. Thursday's memo, though, sent by a federal official to employees in the Raymond Boulevard building and obtained by Patch, outlines some of the movie shoot. In the email, the official wrote that he met with a Warner Bros. representative. The memo said on Friday, Nov. 4, there will be 100 actors dressed as police officers for a shoot, which will take place at the northwest corner of the building from approximately 1 p.m. to 4 p.m. In addition to the actors, there will be mock SWAT and emergency vehicles, according to the email. The memo also details preparations for the filming, including lining
