

Well, this is another case of humor not translating well when put into words to be read on computer screens. Yesterday, MTV reported that Christopher Nolan screened The Dark Knight Rises for WB Execs and that the rough cut of the film was 4 hours long. Well, Nolan did screen the film, and it was reportedly well received but it was not 4 hours. In fact, like us, MTV has no idea how long the final Batman film from Nolan will be. The author of MTV's article took to twitter to clear things up. Just to clear some confusion: I have no idea how long "The Dark Knight Rises" rough cut is. "4 hours" was a joke taken too literally.— Kevin P. Sullivan (@KPSull) March 21, 2012 See guys, even a site with the power and money of MTV can sometimes make a mistake or a exercise poor judgement.
