

The Hollywood Reporter has learned that Justice Smith has signed on for a role in Universal Pictures' upcoming sequel to their 2015 mega-blockbuster Jurassic World. Details on his role are being kept under wraps for the time being, but he joins a cast headlined by Chris Pratt (Guardians of the Galaxy, Vol.2) & Bryce Dallas Howard (Black Mirror), who will reprise their roles as Owen & Claire from the original film. Smith is now the third new addition for the hotly anticipated sequel, following Toby Jones (Captain America: The First Avenger) and Rafe Spall (Life of Pi), who both joined early last month. J.A. Bayona (A Monster Calls) is helming the feature with a script from Jurassic World director Colin Trevorrow and his writing partner Derek Connolly. Smith is best known for his lead role as Ezekiel "Zeke" Figuero on Netflix's musical drama series The Get Down and was also seen last year in coming-of-age tale Paper Towns.
