

Just earlier today, it was announced that Amanda Plummer was cast in Lionsgate's adaptation of The Hunger Games: Catching Fire, the second novel in the highly successful series by Suzanne Collins. Now, we have a couple more reports related to not only Catching Fire, but the recently announced two-part adaptation of Mockingjay. Variety reports that Snow White & The Huntsman's Sam Claflin is currently Lionsgate's top choice to play the character Finnick Odair (the most coveted role for the anticipated sequel) in Catching Fire. The British actor is apparently close to being offered the role. Additionally, Melissa Leo (next year's Oblivion) and Tony Shalhoub (Men In Black) are the front runners for the roles of 'Mags' and 'Beetee', respectively. Jena Malone is said to be playing Johanna Mason, while Philip Seymour Hoffman is set to play Plutarch Heavensbee. Most of the first film's cast members (Jennifer Lawrence, Liam Hemsworth, etc.) will

Read more: <http://www.comicbookmovie.com/fansites/BatFreak/news/?a=64030>