

Like Batman v Superman: Dawn of Justice, Suicide Squad was a pretty divisive movie. One of the things many fans took issue with from early on were the costume designs, but concept artist Christian Lorenz Scheurer has now shared some very interesting new alternate designs via his official website. Those mostly focus on Enchantress, and her final form here actually looks a fair bit more impressive than the CGI heavy final version the movie itself delivered. Also below are some shots of The Joker and Harley Quinn which point to her escape playing out a little differently in an earlier version of the movie. As you can see, a drone rescues her and the villains later attempt to escape via a Midway City bridge. Alternate designs for these characters, Incubus (a villain most of us would probably prefer to forget), and the Enchantress' soldiers can be found by clicking below. What do you think of these designs?

Read more: https://www.comicbookmovie.com/suicide_squad/the-joker-and-a-much-cooler-looking-enchantress-are-featured-in-new-a146329