

It's definitely a great time to be a DC Comics and primetime television watcher. A new promo from The CW highlights the network's impressive commitment to providing nightly superhero action for fans from coast-to-coast. All we need now is a Friday night show and the entire week would be set. Although, Friday night certainly didn't do any favors for Constantine when it aired on NBC so perhaps The CW knows what they're doing... What do you think of the current new Fall DCTV seasons currently underway on The CW? Let us know in the comment section below. Watch your favorite DC superheroes all week long on The CW, starting Mondays this fall!
