

Director Josh Boone seemed to confirm that he was set to begin shooting his New Mutants movie in Montreal around April, but a new report from Le Journal de Montreal (via Omega Underground) suggests that it'll commence production the slightly later in May, and also lists the film's title as "X-Men: The New Mutants." It remains to be seen if this turns out to be official, but it wouldn't be too surprising if the studio wanted to make sure audiences knew the movie was a part of the X-franchise. It could also mean that this will actually be more of a direct continuation than a spin-off, opening up the possibility of some characters from Bryan Singer's X-Men: Apocalypse returning. That's just speculation for now of course. In a separate interview with Creative Screenwriting, Boone discusses which New Mutants comics were the inspiration for the script he and co-writer/childhood friend Knate Gwaltney turned in, and reveals that they originally pitched a trilogy to Simon

Read more: <https://www.comicbookmovie.com/x-men/the-official-title-of-the-new-mutants-movie-and-its-production-start-date-a147544>