

Following the action-packed season premiere, it's fair to say that one of the most exciting things about Legends of Tomorrow this year will be seeing the Reverse-Flash assemble the Legion of Doom. Unfortunately, it sounds like the fourth instalment will be a filler episode, but when the Legends are set to battle Civil War era zombies, it's actually pretty damn hard to complain about that for once. While the first episode was a little all over the place, there's no denying that it was good fun, and "Survival" should follow suit. Seeing Firestorm team-up with Vixen promises to be unique, and if there's one thing Legends of Tomorrow does right, it's the dynamic between the team members. This airs on November 3rd, so check out the synopsis below and then let us know your thoughts on it. SURVIVAL — When the Legends discover a time Aberration in 1863, they find themselves fighting for survival during the Civil War with Confederate soldiers who have been
