

While we anxiously await that trailer, a new synopsis for Justice League has seemingly been unearthed in the pages of an unnamed magazine (via The Playlist). The detailed breakdown confirms several things that fans had already pretty much figured out about the plot, and also gives the villainous Darkseid a mention. Though this is being reported everywhere as an official synopsis from Warner Bros., I have my doubts. For one, it's highly unlikely the studio would refer to Snyder's previous DC flick as "BvS", and there's also the sloppy repetition of Darkseid's name at the end. Is it possible this magazine just cobbled something together based on info that was already floating around? Have a read through and see what you make of it. In the wake of Clark Kent/Superman's (Cavill) death at the hands of Doomsday in BvS, vigilante Bruce Wayne/Batman (Affleck) reevaluates his extreme methods and begins reaching out to extraordinary heroes to assemble a team of crime-fighters to defend earth from
