

Suicide Squad wasn't a Batman movie (obviously), but apart from Bruce Wayne's cameo for that tense exchange with Amanda Waller, the Caped Crusader was wasted in the divisive 2016 release. He had a far too brief confrontation with Deadshot, while his kiss with Harley Quinn was downright baffling. Throw in the fact he never crossed paths with The Joker, and yeah, it was definitely a let down. Despite that, Hot Toys is releasing a new action figure based on his likeness there and it's pretty cool! What makes this different to the version from Batman v Superman: Dawn of Justice is the massive cape, though that could be a nightmare to display for perfectionists! There are also various faces and gadgets, but whether that justifies the price tag obviously depends on how much you love Batman. Being huge fans of Batman ourselves, we are pleased to announce the new Hot Toys 1/6th scale collectible figure of Batman from Suicide Squad as a limited edition

Read more: https://www.comicbookmovie.com/suicide_squad/the-version-of-batman-from-suicide-squad-has-a-hot-toys-action-a148908