

1. GREEN LANTERN ANNUAL #1 If the surprise ending of last week's Green Lantern #12 was anything to go by, Hal Jordan may not have a lot of time left, especially as this annual will see the Guardians of Oa finally unleash the mysterious "Third Army" to replace the Green Lantern Corps. Hal and Sinestro have been mysteriously absent from promotional art focusing on the upcoming event, and the cover above certainly seems to indicate that one or both of them will meet their maker. While Doug Mahnke's stunning pencils in the main Green Lantern series are a perfect match for Geoff Johns' writing, longtime fans will definitely be excited to see Ethan Van Sciver's return to the title before the crossover begins following September's #0 issues. 2. JUSTICE LEAGUE #12 At first, it didn't appear that Justice League #12 would be anything more than another quality instalment of the series from writer Geoff

Read more: <http://www.comicbookmovie.com/fansites/JoshWildingNewsAndReviews/news/?a=66447>